

From the Editor

The journal is now in full swing, and has been well received. Still, everyone has a wish list, and I figure as long as it doesn't cost money, people should be attentive.

- First and foremost, articles. True we aren't the Lancet yet, but we aren't a throw away and don't plan to be one. Too busy to write an article yourself? Try asking a resident, medical student or nurse. Or adapt a presentation you gave and write it down.
- Advertising helps us. Subscriptions are necessary, but advertising will help. Israelis love CME abroad, and book publishers are good places to start for getting ads as well.
- I would like to start a help wanted section. If you need EPs to staff an ED or a Miyun Kidmi, put it in IJEM. If you can host a fellow or an observer in your ED in North America, put a notice in our journal. If you have a Ground Rounds or are having a course-IJEM.
- Letters to the Editor are nice. It sharpens us all, and gives feedback.
- The creative part of our journal is an easy way to enter the world of publishing and it keeps a human side of us.
- We are still looking for an editor for GYN Emergency Medicine.

Remember, IJEM is the official journal of the Israeli Association of EM, and we must be the ones to support it. We will be able to play with the "Big Boys" when we realize what we are and what we can be. Let's do it.

Sincerely Yours,
J. B. Liebman, MD
