

Editor's Note: Grace Under Fire

Sept 09, 2006

This issue of The Israeli Journal of Emergency Medicine begins and ends with the acknowledgment of an emergency physician – one departed, one thriving – who stands out as a healer and leader. This is a fitting way to package an issue that has an unprecedented amount of evidence-based content from Israeli emergency physicians, largely produced during a period of crisis.

Scholarly writing, peer review, and the editorial process all continued unimpeded. This is emblematic of both the sabra spirit and the character of the emergency physician – grace under fire.

This issue is dedicated to emergency physicians worldwide, and to their patients whose trust we hold sacred.

Sincerely,

Steven Marc Friedman, MD, MPH

and

The Editors,
Israeli Journal of Emergency Medicine