

The 13th Annual Scientific Assembly of the Israeli Association for EM
Tel Aviv, ISRAEL, March 10-11, 2008

General information about the conference

The Israeli Association for Emergency Medicine invites health care professionals from all fields of Emergency Medicine to attend the 2008 annual scientific assembly, which will be held at the Hilton Tel Aviv hotel on March 10-11, 2008.

The academic program encourages the use of adult education principles. The goal will be to provide participants with defined learning outcomes and active participation by registrants is encouraged.

The first day program includes hands-on, interactive workshops in various domains: Pediatric Sedation and Analgesia, ED Ultrasound, Suturing and Wound Closure.

The second day program includes various presentations such as:

- State-of-the-art large group presentations (lectures) using evidence-based data.
- Interactive teaching sessions focusing on the interaction between participants and presenter/s on a given topic.
- New horizon large group presentations (lectures) introducing an overview of a new development of a specific area.
- Oral and Poster Presentation of the Scientific papers.

Teaching faculty will consist of Israeli and North American Emergency Physicians, experts in their domain. At the end of each presentation, we ask participants to provide anonymous, written feedback to the organizing committee. This is done through the use of specifically designed forms. Completion of these assists the committee in identifying areas where learning objectives were attained. Feedback from participants is essential in order help improve the learning outcome of future Annual Scientific Assemblies.

Requests have been submitted for Continuing Professional Development credits to some leading associations in Emergency Medicine in North America.
